FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

zCover Announces Their New Formula of Transparent, Red Silicone Rubber

RICHMOND, BC, CANADA - June 3, 2009

zCover announced today that a new formula of clear, red silicone is now available for use in their extensive line of protective covers and cases. zCover's new formula of red, silicone rubber is highly transparent, so it is easy to see keyboards, keypads and other controls when protected by a red, zCover cover or case.

This special formula is superior to other formulas of red silicone rubber that are on the market, which are dark and not transparent, making keyboards, device controls and keypads hard to see. zCover's new formula is see-through so and part of their ice Color series of silicone rubber.

zCover cases and keyboard covers are specially designed to provide the ultimate protection. Each case and cover is custom fitted for the device and enhances functionality and appearance. zCover protective products are made with HealthCare grade silicone and are recommended for use in hospitals, clinics and other health care settings where shared phone handsets, computer keyboards and other devices need to be kept free from bacteria and other pathogens. zCover silicone is non-toxic, safe and completely washable by machine, dishwasher, with soap and water by hand or by cleaning with germicidal wipes commonly found in healthcare environments.
